Commonweal Movement Influences Price of Stocks.

Bulls in Control of Affairs on New York 'Change-Indianapolis Wheat on a Decline.

At New York, yesterday, money on call was easy at 1 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 2405 per cent. Sterling exchange was steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.8814@ 4.88% for demand and at $4.87%4.87% for sixty days; posted rates, $4.88@4.89\\2; com- S. hides, 3\\2c; No. 2 G. at 63%c per ounce; at London, 28%d. Total sales of stocks were 174,400 shares. The week opened on the Stock Exchange with a heavy tone to the share speculation, which sent prices down during the first hour and a half of business. The depression was increased by the weakness of the London market for American securities. Arbitrage houses were sellers of St. Paul, Atchison, Union Pacific and other of the foreign specialties. The room traders were nearly all on the short side of the market, and the professional bears put out some heavy lines. The labor question and mon (lbs), $1.25@1.50; lobsters, $1.85@2; red cherries, $1.20@1.25; strawberries, $1.20@1.20; salmon (lbs), $1.45@2.20; 3-pound tomatoes, $1.05 the increase of the great army of the unemployed are being used as unsettling influences on the street, and even in some conservative circles the march on Washington is beginning to assume a serious aspect in view of the excuse which it offers to professional agitators to create a disturbance of the relations between labor and capital." The industrials were most freely sold during the morning and gave way most readily. Sugar led with a break of 21/80 under sales made by operators who had recently been bulls in the stock. General electric was also freely offered in behalf, it is said, of the pool which had brought about the recent advance, and which thought the time had come to liquidate. The decline in this stock reached 2 per cent., with a subsequent recovery of 1% and a final reaction of 14. New Jersey Central lost 134, American Tobacco, Union Pacific and Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred, 1%; Chicago Gas, L. & N. A. and Cordage, 14; St. Paul, 11/8, and Atchison and Sugar preferred 1 per cent. Between 11 and 12 o'clock the downward movement was checked by purchases to cover short contracts and by buying for the long account, induced by the lower range of values. The purchasing movement, while not very strong, was steady throughout the early afternoon, and recoveries were made not exceeding a fraction, except in the case of Cordage, which railied 1 per cent. The higher figures were maintained until after delivery hour, when a renewal of the selling caused a reaction, in which most of the early improve-ment was lost and still lower figures were touched in many instances. Northern Pacific making a total decline of 114, and ad-ditional declines being recorded of 56 in American Tobacco and 18024 in other shares of the active list. Sugar recovered 1% of the morning decline, losing 14 in the final sales, the decline of the day being 14; preferred, I per cent. The other declines of the day are: American Tobacco and New York & New Haven, 2: General Electric, 17s: New Jersey Central and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Louisville & Nashville, 1%; Lead and Northern Pacific preferred. 136: Chicago Gas, Manhattan and Lake Erie & Western preferred, 1%; Union Pacific and Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred, 114, and St. Paul and Starch first preferred, 1 per cent. Some regret, but cut no figure in the speculation, banking house not being much interestad in stocks. The bond market was weak throughout the day. Government bonds were steady. State bonds were dull. The following table, prepared by James E.

day's transactions, notably St. Paul & Du-

Treatment of Burns.

New York Ledger. In these days of experiment, when, as an eminent surgeon recently remarked, "the profession seems mainly interested in trying to see how much of the human frame they can cut away and still have the victim live," it is interesting to record an instance wherein doctors have been willing to depart slightly from the scientific and try the efficacy of what some of their contemporaries contemptuously call "old womeighteen years, was burned by the igniting of a quantity of gasoline. The arms, face, neck, shoulders and the inside of the mouth and throat were badly burned, the hands especially being so charred that the flesh crumbled into black powder upon being touched. The treatment consisted of applications of soft paste made of lard and flour, This was renewed as fast as the flour became dried and crumbly by the absorption of the fat. Upon the first application there was a decided sense of relief, which was increased by the free use of opiates. No other remedy was used, and the burns, although very deep in some places, involving not less than half an inch of the flesh, healed without a scar. In this case an extremely serious state of things ensued in the way of an obstinate cough and the raising of a quantity of thin, white, filmy membrane, which was pronounced the coating of the throat and the air passages of the upper part of the lungs. In her fright the roung woman had evidently drawn the flame into the lungs in sufficient quantity to blister some portion of them. Her recovery was rapid, considering the gravity of the case, she being confined to her room but about five weeks. When the bandages were removed from the burned surfaces they were kept thoroughly softened with lard, and the drawing-up and disfigurement usually accompanying such injuries was entirely absent. This is, in striking contrast to the ordinary lime-water-and-linseed-oil treatment which has induced spontaneous combustion, and the zinc and other washes that have produced nausea and hemorrhages of the stomach, with fatal terminations. Perfectly clean home-rendered lard may be obtained by almost anyone, and forms the basis of a course of treatment that will, if properly managed and persistently applied, save the lives of eight cases out of ten and prevent all distressing disfigurements.

Wired Sleeves and Whalebone Revers Harper's Bazar. Among ingenious devices for holding expanded sleeves in the desired shape Worth is using a single threadlike wire stitched n the upper edge of the sleeve drapery. This is not put in simple balloon puffs, but n a scarf around the top of close sleeves. starting in the inside seam, then curving out to give breadth, drooping to show the sleeve underneath, and sewed to it without meeting. The Right Kind of Partnership. National Stockman. As a rule, partnerships are not advantageous in moderate enterprises. There are, however, exceptions to all rules. One exception which will be admitted by the careful thinker is where a father can take his son or sons into partnership with him, and thus start them in life in a business way. Such arrangements are often best for all concerned. The father may need the push and dash that young blood will put into the business, while the son or sons may need the steady guiding hand of the father. Old men frequently fall because of their too conservative way of doing business, while young men make failures because of taking too great risks or lack of experience. A partnership of this kind is but a natural combination, and if properly managed leads to great success.

In a business depending upon the public for patronage, a firm of this kind has much in the name to recommend it. No matter how dishonest and tricky men may be there are few who care to teach their children to follow disreputable methods. A firm composed of father and son is therefore regarded with much favor by the public. There are exceptions to this rule, also, but in most cases it holds good. A man generally has enough manhood about him to recommend him to strangers who is considerate enough with his own children to take them with him into business enterprises. There are but few things that indicate honesty, integrity and a noble purpose more than this. But the advantages of such co-partner-ships are not always found in the financial side of the question. Neither is it necessary to be engaged in a business that depends upon the outside world for success before such arrangements can be made to advantage. An undisputed and well defined interest in a few acres of grain, a colt that may develop into a valuable horse, or a bunch of pigs that can be turned into money in the future, may awaken an in-terest in the mind of the boy that would change the whole character of his life. The reason there are so many poor business men among farmers is simply because they have never been taught business. There is no better way to teach boys business principles than to take them into partnership and develop their minds in the right direction. Give the boys a chance, and it will be their fault if they fail. Otherwise it will be yours.

Care of Horses. Germantown Telegraph.

Driving horses are frequently injured, but never by judicious driving. The injury results rather from neglect of proper care and attention after driving and while unemployed. A driving horse may be injured for a want of providing sufficient exercise. The limbs of the animal and the hoofs may become injured by the animal being confined several days in a narrow stall with no opportunity for exercise; and this is likely to be further aggravated by being obliged to stand upon a plank floor, although it is better to stand upon the bare floor than to stand upon a mass of bedding that is liable to fermentation and injury to the feet. If the horse is to be confined constantly in the stable by all means give it sufficient room to allow perfect freedom in moving about, exercising the legs at pleasure. Avoid watering or heavy feeding after severe exercise and when warm. Many animals are seriously and permanently injured by carelessness in this matter. The anima. may be given a little hay to eat while cooling off sufficiently to receive a grain ration. A horse that has been exercised and become wet with perspiration should not be hitched in a draught of air, especially in a ccoi temperature; much care should be exercised in this direction in winter and the animal should not be allowed to stand for any length of time unless properly blanketed or suitable protection is afforded Stable blanketing in winter should be judicious; in case of sever perspiration occurring from severe exercise have an old
